THE INDIAN DISTURBANCES .- The St. Paul Pioneer, of the 18th ult., contains a letter from Gen. James Shields, dated at Farribault, April 15th, which pointedly contradicts the reports about Indian murders at Mankato. He says that reliable information had just been received from Mankato undl Blue Earth county, from various sources, "and al state that there is not the slightest foundation for these absurd reports." The letter concludes:

"You may declare with truth that there is neither contility nor sign of hostility amongst the ludian fibes in this Territory. Yours, truly,

The Minnesotian, of the 20th ult., confirms the above. The editor saw a gentleman directly from "the seat of war," who says not a drop of white blood has been shed upon the waters of the Blue Earth, the Watanwan, or any of its branches. No hostile Indians had heen nearer Mankatothan Spirit Lake. The reports of murders arose from the fact that some peaceable annuity Indians went there to make sugar, and, seeing their fires at night, they were imagined to be those of burning cabins. He said all the Iudians were fleeing from the sugarbush to the fort for protection, seared nearly out of

The New York Board of Aldermen have adopted, by a vote of fourteen to six, a preamble and resolution declaring that the Legislature had prostituted its power by imposing on the city tyrannical laws, and that the City Charter, Police, Central Park, City Hall, Excise and Port Warden acts shall not take effect until the validity thereof is established by competent authority; and more over that the Common Council will protect all persons in a proper resistance to the enforcement of the same. The resolution from the Councilmen, appropriating $5,000 to defray the expense of contesting the disputed laws, was amended by substituting $10,000 and adopted.

Mr. R. Atkinson is now occupying one of the did warehouses in the new block on Main, between Second and Third streets. Its capacity for storage is very extensive, and the counting-room is one of the most elegant, convenient, and handsome ly arranged we have ever seen. The large iron safe s both burglar and fire-proof, with over four hundred thousand combinations to the lock. It was manufactured at the celebrated establishment of A. C. Harig, in this city.

A letter from the wife of Crawford, the Sculptor, to a gentleman in Philadelphia, is published in the Evening Bulletin of that city. She gives a clear, and of course reliable, account of the pro gress of her husband's malady and his present condition, from which we infer that the symptoms are favorable, and that there is a probability that he will ultimately be restored to health, though he may lose the sight of the affected eye.

John Thomas Carter, a son of Dr. L. Carter of Anderson county, aged nine years, was killed by the falling of a tree on last Monday evening. 1le was assisting an elder brother in clearing a field, when a small tree that was burning fell, striking him on the head and bruising his body very severe ly. His wounds produced loc jaw, and he died in the brief space of 24 hours after the occurrence.

Hogs.-The present high price of provisions will likely result beneficial to those who are fattening hogs for next fall. We hear of a contract made by one of our packers for 2,000 head Indiana hogs, 113 miles from this city on the railroad, to be delivered in November, at $4 50 gross, which is equal to about $6 50 net here.

The Northerner will also take passengers for points below Memphis and as far as New Orleans, who can take the Empress at Cairo or Memphis. The Missouri Ledger demands that the Saint Louis Democrat, on account of its Freesoilism, be tumbled into the Mississippi as the Parkville Freesoil Press was into the Missouri. It might however prove a little difficult to lynch a paper for its Freesoilism in a city where the vote shows the Freesoilers to be a very large majority. Iladn't the Ledger better suggest that Saint Louis herself be pitched into the Mississippi?

A division of the United States army in this valley again.—Brigham Young.

Let Ben McCulloch go out as Governor and Gen. Harney as military commander at the head of a sufficient force, and we guess the army will have no difficulty in finding quarters in the valley. Brigham Young himself will be the one to want quarter if

Rev. Sydney Dyer, late of this city, has been appointed agent of the Church Edifice Fund of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society. His general acquaintance with the west admirably fits him for the position. His head-quarters will be in New York city.

Montgomery, Alabama, was visited by a destructive fire last week. It burned the Eclipse livery stable and thirty horses perished in the flames. Some of the horses were very valuable. Several adjoining buildings were also destroyed.

"The bear woman" is advertised for exhibition at the Maryland Institute in Baltimore. If the word bear were differently spelt in the advertisement, the exhibition would probably be more attractive to a certain class.

PROSE WORKS OF HENRY WADSWORTH LONG-FELLOW. In two volumes. Boston: Ticknor & Fields.

This is a beautiful edition of Longfellow's pros works, containing "Outre Mere, a Pilgrimage be-yond the Seas," "Hyperion," and other tales and essays, in prose, by the poet laureate. There are few such sprightly and fascinating writers on either side of the Atlantic as Longfellow. His literary fame is too well known to need repetition here. The volumes issued by Ticknor & Fields, in a convenient and elegant form, will find a place in the libraries and book-tables of all who love good books or appreciate good stories, produced by one of the master spirits in poetry and literature.

SMILES AND FROWNS. By Sara A. Wentz. New York: D. Appleton & Co.

This publication has been made the subject of extensive comments by the book-reviewers. Its merits are frankly acknowledged. It is well written, and is intended to illustrate the triumph of virtue and the punishment of vice. But it is one of that class of publications, which the present fast age has rendered popular, in which reality is distorted and exaggerated to the most intense degree. It belongs to the class of sensation books, in which common places are ignored and every body is made a hero or heroine, where love is always a transport, virtue a martyr, and vice a fiend incarnate.

THE DAYS OF MY LIFE. By the author of "Margaret Maitland." New York: Harper & Brothers. This is an autobiography by an author of established reputation. It is not one of the flashy, exciting romances of the day, but a history of quiet life and heart struggles, pleasantly told, and having, what is rarely found now-a-days, a good moral tendency. The author of "Margaret Maitland" has already won friends and admirers, and "The Days of My Life" will be read with real interest.

MARY AND HUGO, A CHRISTMAS LEGEND. By Elizabeth Oakes Smith, with illustrations by Darley. New York: Derby & Jackson. In 1848, Mrs. E. O. Smith published this legend over the nomme de plume of "Ernest Helfenstein." It was received with much favor by the public. It is a quaintlytold legend of the valley of the Ramapo, which was famed in Revolutionary times as the camping ground of the patriot forces upon several occasions.

READING WITHOUT TEARS, OR A PLEASANT MODE OF LEARNING TO READ. New York: Harper & Brothers.-This is an admirably arranged pictorial reader. The object of the book is to offer induccments to the youthful mind to learn to read. The peculiarity of the arrangement of the book is in the pictures, the classification of the words, and the omission of irregular words.

HOMICIDE IN DRESDEN, TENN .- On Monday last, Jeptha Gardner, a hotel-keeper at Dresden, got into an affray with Mr. Wagoner, the town constable, which arose from the latter demanding of the former his town tax. In the fight Wagoner drew his pistol and shot Gardner twice, one ball breaking his arm and the other entering just below the stomach and passing directly back toward the spine. Wagoner was not seriously hurt, though Gardner beat him considerably with a stick before Wagoner fired. Gardner, it was feared, was mortally wounded. Ile was about 50 years of age, and has a family.

A BEAUTIFUL PICTURE.-There may be seeen in ne of the exhibition windows of Evarts & Morton, Main street, the latest creation of Mr. W. P. Brannan's skilfull pencil. DORA SHAW IN A ROW.—The Wheeling Times. of yestesday, has the following theatrical intelli-

Last night at the theater Miss Dora Shaw, in the middle of the first seene, left Armand Duval standing in the middle of the stage, where the two had been talking very lovingly together, walked furions, and majestically up to the foot-lights and spoke as follows, briefly and to the point:

Ladies and Gentlemen: When I appear upon the boards of a theater, I am always ied to expect that I shall be supported. I have not been supported this evoning, and I therefore, with your permissiou, respectfully decline going through with this play.

With these words she gathered up the folds of her really magnificent and costly dress, scowled upon Armand, and strode loftily from the stage. The audience was astounded—completely dumbfounded at this extraordinary conduct on the part of Miss Dora Shaw. Armand (Mr. Hanchett) stood quietly looking on during the enactment of this scene, and when it had concluded he stepped forward and in a view transfeld areas a proceeded to say that he had quiet, unruffled manner proceeded to say that he had only one remark to make—that the lady had studi-ously endeavored to render herself disagreeable to ously endeavored to render nersoil disagreeable to himself and the members of the company, and appealed to those prevent to decide as to the truth of the accusation made by the ludy. Mr. Hanchett wound up with the remark that Miss Dora Shaw would never have the honor of appearing before those to whom he was reasking, while the theater those to whom he was speaking, while the theater remained under his management. His remarks were followed by vociferous demonstrations of applace, which indicated for once in the world that the sympathy was in the man's instead of the woman's favor—and a very pretty woman, too.

IMPORTANT TO OUR MERCHANTS .- Our business men will do well to consider the following, from the Russellville Herald:

The capitalists and business men of Louisville are certainly not aware of the vast amount of trade that certainly not aware of the vast amount of trade that could be secured to that city by a milroad connection with this section of the State, or they would feel a more lively interest in our proposed branch road than they do. The trade of Logan county alone, in tobacco, wheat, hogs, cattle, &c., is extensive, and but a small portion of these productions now go to Louisville. Our town and county have a large number of merchants, grocers, &c., comparatively few of whom make their purchases in Louisville. It may be, however, that Louisville already has as large a trade as she desires; we can only account for her apathy by supposing such to be the case. Her merchants and business men generally appear to have no desire to secure the patronage of Logan, as they do not even make an effort by advertising in her county paper.

The New York Times, of Tuesday, says: At a meeting of the New York Young Men's Christian Association, last evening, one hundred and seventy-nine members of that Society, including several prominent clergymen of this city, announced their resignation of membership. The movement had been anticipated, and to match it the names of ninety-three new members were proposed immediately after. The resignations were not acted on-the subject being laid over till the next meeting. The alleged motive for this desertion of the Society is the desertion by the Society of its early aims and intentions. The parties going out protest definitely that any late action of the Society on the Slavery question has not affected them.

The names of the clergymen who sent in their resignations we learn were the following—all D. D.'s except one or two:

Gardner Spring, Joseph McElroy, Thes. DeWitt.

except one or two:
Gardner Spring, Joseph McElroy, Thos. DeWitt,
Chas, K. Imbrie, Wm. Adams, G. T. Bedell, Talbott W. Chambers, Geo. Potts, Jas. W. Alexander,
M. S. Ilntton, John Knox, Wm. B. Crosby, Isaac Ferris, Edward Lathrop.

Now that the new Parliament of Great Britain has been with the exception of but about a half dozen members elected. It may not be uninteresting to give a brief narration of the torms and ceremont is which attend the death of an English House of Commons and the birth of its successor. What is termed in England "a dissolution," is the civil death of the Parliament, and may be effected either by the pleasure of the Crown, the demise of the Crown, or by length of time. The life of a Parliament cannot be prolonged, even by the authority of a sovereign, for more than seven years. When it reaches that age it must expire, and a new election take place. And, however recently elected, it must come to an end in six months after the demise of the Crown; as for instance, should any fatality beginned to the control of the Crown; as for instance, should any fatality befail Queen Victoriach that delicate ord, all just approaching, the Parliament just now elected would cease within six months to live, and another election be inevitable. Then, of course, it may be dissolved in even a less period than six months, at the pleasure of the new sovereign.

Poisoning Case — A Strange Story. — On the morning of Sunday, the 19th, inst., a portion of the family of Mr. William O. Kline, a member of the Select Council from the Seventeenth Ward, was taken seriously ill. The two sons and the father of Mr. Kline were the personsattacked, and for a time their recovery was considered doubtful. Mr. William O. Kline and his brother, Dr. Isaac Cline, were absent from the city at the time, and they, of course, oscaped. Mrs. William O. Cline also escaped, and as she was the only one of the family who did not partake of sugar at breakfast, it was at once inferred that poison had been introduced into the sugar, either by accident or by design. Upon submitting either by accident or by design. Upon submitting the contents of the sugar bowl to chemical tests it was at once discovered that they were largely mixed with tartar emetic.
All efforts to ascertain how the drug got into the sugar were fruitless until last Saturday, when a colored woman named Anna Maria Roberts made an affidavit at the Mayor's office, which, it true, reveals a strange story of crime, ignorance, and supersti-tion. The story was to the following effect: The colored woman deposed that in February or March last she lived with a certain half-crazy woman named Mrs. Haggerty, in the upper part of the city, who is a planet codor and fortune tallor by superswho is a planet reader and fortune teller by profession. While at Mrs. Haggerty's house, Mrs. Emily Kline—who is married to Dr. Isaac Kline, but with whom the latter refuses to live—was a visitor at the honse of Mrs. H. On these visits, the deponent alleges Mrs. Kline offered Mrs. Haggerty fifty dollars and a gold watch if she would give Dr. Kline something that would make him either live with her, or that would put him out of the way. This 'love powder" arrangement was acquiesed in, according to the colored womau's story, but the latter says she prevented the consummation of the plan by giving or. Klinc a hint of what was going on.

Mrs. Roberts went on to state that they finally determined to administer the charm to Dr. Kline, in spite of her efforts to dissuade them from it, and she says that after she had ent him word that there plot against him and advised him to call on Was a plot against him and advised thin to can on Mrs. Haggerty, the latter had said that nuless the Doctor came by a given time "and gave her a hundred dollars she would give him something that would put him past coming—she worked for them who naid best." who naid best.

According to the story of the colored woman, Mrs. Haggerty had told her that Mrs. Emily Kline had once wanted her to take away the hearing of Dr. Kline. She did not do the job herself, but she recommended her to a colored man, whom, she said, did it for fifteen dollars.

The black woman in the course of her disclosures said that Mrs. Haggerty had remarked that she could administer the drug with a better effect if Dr. Kline would call upon her, but that it would not make much difference as long as a certain girl was employed as a chambermaid in the family of Mr. Win. O. Kline, with whom Dr. Kline boarded. The deponent also told of how, on a certain occasion, Mrs. Haggerty sent her to a drug store for a white powder, the name of which she did not know, and how Mrs. H. had said it was poison, and that she was going to fix it up for a woman.

This is a brief outline of the affidavit made by the colored woman who went extensively into details.

MESSES. EDITORS:—In a late number of your paper a communication appeared from the Trustees of that valuable institution, The Ophan's Home, established by the Presbyterian churches of this city, appealing in its behalf to their Assembly for aid, which they state that having long felt the necessity of a Protestant Orphan Asylum in Louisville, and hiving in vain endeavored to secure the co-operation of other Protestant denominations, they had precured a charter and founded an Asylum. While rejoing in this successful and needed charity of our brethren, we feel it due to the friends of the orphan, throughout the State, as well as to the generous pathroughout the State, as well as to the generous pathroughout the State, as well as to the generous patrons of the Protestant Episcopal Orphan Asylum of this city, to correct the (doubtless unintentioual) error of the above statement. The Protestant Episcopal Orphan Asylum of Lonisville was established in 1835, twenty-two years ago, and during this period has averaged always from twenty (in the first years of its existence) to sixty children at once under its fostering care. It has now a double brick building on Firth street, between Chestnut and Broadway, on a commodious and pleasant lot, donated by the munificence of its generous patron, the late John Bustard, Esq., and has not only a valuable matron and an experienced nurse in its employ, but a most competent teacher, besides other assistants needed in the case of so large a family. During these many years, in which this noble institution has been blessed alike with the smiles of a kind. Providence and the bounty of numerous friends, some of have now "entered into rest," the time would fail us to tell of the numbers of children who have found a happy home within its sueltering walls. Many, after being well educated, have, on attaining their majo-rity, gone to trades and service of their own choos-ing. A still larger number have been adopted into ing. A still larger number have been adopted into prosperous homes, and many more are now heads of families, imparting to their own happy households the lessons of virtue and usefulness implanted in their youth by the christian hand of this most blessed charity. It is only necessary to add that the institution never was in a more prosperous state than at present, under the kind and judicious management which daily watches over its welfare; and to express the hope, as it is constantly receiving destitute children from all the religious denominations, and from the suffering and friendless poor of every class in our midst, that it will continue to meet, in its increasing need, a support commensurate with its extensive usefulness.

THE SLAVE TRADE,-Information has been re osived at the State Department at Washington from St. Paul de Loanda that the slave trade on that coast is now flourishing. It is said that five vessels have lately left with slaves. The Congo river and its neigh or hood have been the headquarters, and American gold is now quite plenty there, having been brought in vessels which clear from New York-some for Cape de Verds, and some for Loanda, but which seldom arrive at those places.

The Harrisou county court-house at Cynthiana is now adorned by a public clock that cost $550.

THE LAW OF DOGS .- A highly important decision as respects the manner in which the eye of the law looks upon the peccadilloes of the canine race has been made in the New York Supreme Court. The case was an appeal from the decision of a county court, whereby the defendant had been mulcted for the death of the plaintiff's dog, which was occasioned by the rough treatment of the defendants' "bowwow." The decision of the lower court was reversed on the ground that there was no law against dogs fighting, the Justice (Allen) remarking that he supposed this was one of the few privileges which this class of animals still retained in the domesticated state; that it was one of their reserved rights, not surrendered when they entered into and became a part of the domestic institution, to settle and avenge, in their own way, all individual wrongs and insults, without regard to what Blackstone or any other jurist might write, speak, or think, of "the rights of persons," or the "rights of thiugs." The only consclation which the learned judge vouched to the injured plaintiff was contained in the following quaint

"The owner of the dead dog would, I think, be clearly entitled to the skin, though some, less liberal, would be disposed to award it to the victor, and this rule would ordinarily be a fair equivalent for the loss, and with that, unless the evidence differ materially from that in the case, he should be contcut.

Young Lady in a Schape-Hoops and High Heels in Church .- The Richmond Whig says:

A few Sundays ago, a modest young gentleman of our acquaintance attended the morning service, in one of our fashionable churches. He was kindly shown into a luxuriously cushioned pew, and had hardly settled bimself, and taken an observation of his neighbors, before a beautiful young lady entered, and with a graceful wave of the hand preventing our friend from rising to give her place, quietly sunk into a seat near the end. When a hymn was given out, she skillfully found the page, and with a sweet smile that set his heart a thomping, handed her neighbor the book. The minister raised his hands in prayer, and the fair girl knelt, and in this posture perplexed her friend to know which most to admire, her beauty or her devoutness. Presently the prayer was coucluded, and the congregation resumed their seats. Our friend respectfully raised his eyes from the fair form he had been so earnestly scanning, lest when she looked up she would detect his neighbors, before a beautiful young lady enterscanning, lest when she looked up she would detect bim staring at her.

After a couple of seconds he darted a furtive glance at his charmer and was astonished to see her still on her knees; he looked closely and saw that she was much affected, trembling in violent agination no doubt from the eloquent power of the preacher. Deeply sympathizing, he watched her closely. Her emotion became more violent; reaching her hard behind her, she would convulsively grasp her elothing, and strain, as it were, to rend the brilliant fabric of her dress. The sight was exceedingly painful to behold, but he still gazed, like one entranced, with wonder and astonishment. After a minute the lady raised her face, heretofore concealed in the endition, and with her hard rade on usual in the cushion, and with her hand made an unnis-takeable beckon to our friend. He quickly moved along the pew toward her and inclined his ear, as she along the pew toward her and inclined his ear, as she evidently wished to say something.

"Please help me, sir," she whispered, "my dress has caught, and I can't get up." A brief examination revealed the cause of the difficulty; the fair girl wore fashional le high-heeled shoes; kneeling upon both knees, these heels of course struck out at right angles, and in this position the highest hoop of her new-fangled skirt caught over them, and thus rendered it impossible for her to raise herself or straighten her limbs. The more she struggled the tighter was she bound; so she was constrained to call for en her limbs. The more she struggled the tighter was she bound; so she was constrained to call for help. This was immediately, if not scientifically, rendered; and when the next prayer was made she merely inclined herself upon the back of the front pew—thinking, no doubt, that she was not in praying costume.

ROMANTIC INCIDENT.—Some sixteen years since, a young gentleman in New York city contrived awhile to pay his addresses to a beautiful girl there, the daughter of an obstinate Pearl street merchan; who was opposed to the young man visiting his daughter. He persisted in his endeavors to win the young lady, and at last he was forbidden to enter the old man's house.

Still, the lovers contrived to meet, occasionally, afterwards; and, at the expiration of six months, matters having been previously so arranged, the girl consented to marry the youth. He did not seek the fortune, for he was in employment, at a handsome salary, as principal book-keeper in an extensive jobbing house, and his pecuniary prospects were very fair. But the parents were obdurate, and he was driven from the house.

At the end of a twelvementh they agree to be sarried, and all the requisite arrangements were made; the evening was fixed upon, and even the chaplain had been engaged; but on the morning of the day proposed secretly for the nuptials, the whole plan was discovered, and the match broken off peremptorily by the absolute authority of the

Time passed on; the daughter was sent to a distant part of the country for awhile—the young man was disappointed and disheartened, and left New York for the West, where he remained for two years. Meantine a person to suit the tastes of the parents turned up—a man of considerable means, but old enough to be the young girl's father, and a match was arranged, after a long persuasion, between Emma and this man, and she wedded him at last.

Three years subsequently the young man found himself in New England, where he settled and look a wife also, and some dozen years passed away, with their thousand and one changes of place; of circum-stances, and of fortune. From the time of their separation the original lovers had never met. The young man became the father of three little ones, and then lost two of these, which bereave-ment was soon after followed by the death of his wife. Time flew by; he had been fortunate in his basiness, and resided a few miles out of Boston, in a cottage surrounded by the comforts of life and in the enjoyment of the society of his dear little

One day he was returning home in the afternoon One day he was returning home in the afternoon, and, upon entering the cars, found them to be full. He sought a scat, and found one occupied by a lady about thirty years of age, beside whom he sat down, and the cars soon moved out of the depot. As they entered into the light, he suddenly turned to the lady and exclaimed, "Madam! Emma! Is this you?"

He didn't know exactly what he said, but it was fact that he was on the seat with the girl whom he had really loved, and whom he had never seen since the cruel separation.

A mutual explanation quickly succeeded. Our widowed friend ascertained that his former intended was now on her way to the north, upon a visit; that she had been married nearly eleven years, had but one child living, and her husband had been dead ever two years.

He pointed out his pretty cottage as the cars passed on, but did not leave the train. He proceeded forward, renewed his acquaintance, found the lady her own mistress, proposed to her again, and we record the fact with no ordinary degree of pleasure that, within three weeks, the lovers were actually united in marriage in the city of Boston.

BAYARD TAYLOR IN NORTHERN EUROPE.

KAUTOKEINO, Norwegian Lapland, January 20, 1857. Kautokeino is situated in a shallow valley, or rathr basin, opening toward the northeast, whither is river flows to join the Alten. Although only 835 feet above the sea, and consequently below the limits of the birch and the fir in this latitude, the countries have been searched. its of the birch and the ir in this latitude, the country has been stripped entirely bare for miles around, and nothing but the scattering groups of low, dark huts breaks the snowy monotony. It is with great difficulty that vegetables of any kind can be raised. Potatoes have once or twice been made to yield eightfold, but they are generally killed by the early autumn frosts before maturity. Ou the southern bank of the river, the ground remains frozen the whole year round, at the depth of only nine feet. The country furnishes nothing except reindeer meat, milk, and cheese. Grain, and other supplies of all kinds, must be hauled up from the Alten Fiord, a kinds, must be hauled up from the Aften Fiord, a distance of 112 miles. The carriage is usually performed in winter, when, of course, everything reaches its destination in a frozen state. The potatoes are as hard as quartz pebbles, sugar and salt become stony masses, and even wine assumes a solid form. In this state they are kept until wanted for use, rapidly thawed and immediately cousumed, whereby their flavor is but little impaired.

Winter is the season when the Lapps are found at home, and when their life and habits are most char-home, and when their life and habits are most char-icteristic and interesting. The population of Kau-tokeino at present is perhaps about eight hundred; in summer it is scarcely one-tenth of this number. Many of the families—especially those of mixed Finnish blood—live in wooden huts, with the luxury of a lire-place and chimnsy, and a window or two; but the greater part of them burrow in low habita-tions of earth, which resemble large mole-hills raistions of earth, which resemble large mole-hills raised in the crust of the soil. At present, half snowedover and blended with the natural inequalities of the earth, one would never imagine, but for the smoke here and there issuing from holes, that human beings existed below. On both sides of the stream are rows of store-houses, wherein the Lapps deposit their supplies and household articles during their summer wanderings. These structures are raised upon birch posts, each capped with a smooth, horizontal board, in order to prevent the rats and mice appen offen persk, each capped with a smooth, horizontal board, in order to prevent the rats and mice from effecting an entrance. The church stands upon a slight eminence to the south, with its low red believe standing apart, as in Sweden, in a small grove of birches which have been spared for a summer ornament to the sanctuary.

We awoke at 8 o'clock to find a clear twilight and a cold o'. Hydrog below, zero. Our stay at Mooney and a cold o'. Hydrog below, zero. Our stay at Mooney and a cold o'. Hydrog below, zero.

and a cold of 10 deg. below zero. Our stay at Muo-niovara had given the sun time to increase his alti-tude somewhat, and I had some doubts whether we should succeed in beholding a day of the Polar Win-ter. The Landsmann, however, encouraged us by the assurance that the sun had not yet risen upon the assurance that the sun had not yet risen upon his residence, though nearly six weeks had elapsed since his disappearance, but that his return was now looked for every day, since he had already begun to sline upon the northern hills. By 10 o'clock it was light enough to read; the southern sky was a broad sea of golden orange, dotted with a few crimson cloud-islands, and we set ourselves to watch with some anxiety the gradual approach of the exiled god. But for this circumstance, and two other drawbacks, I should have gone to church to witness the Lapps at their religious exercises. Pastor Hvoslef was ill, and the service consisted only of the reading of some prayers by the Lapp schoolmaster; adwas ill, and the service consisted only of the reading of some prayers by the Lapp schoolmaster; added to which, the church is never warmed, even in the coldest days of winter. One cause of this may perhaps be the dawd of an accidental configgration; but the main reason is the inconvenience which would arise from the thawing out of so many antiquated reindeer garments, and the effluvia given out by the warmed bodies within them. Consequently, the temperature inside the church is about the same as outside, and the frezen moisture of the the same as outside, and the frezen moisture of the worshippers' breath forms a frosty cloud so dense as sometimes to hide the elergyman from the view of his congregation. Pastor II voslef informed me that he had frequently preached in a temperature of 35 deg. below zero. "At such times," said he, "the very words seem to freeze as they issue from my lips, and fall upon the heads of my hearers like a shower of snow."

The sky increased in brightness as we watched. The orange thished into rose and the pate white hills looked even more ghastly against the bar of glowing carmine which fringed the horizon. A few long purple streaks of cloud hung over the sun's place, and higher up in the vault floated some loose masses, tinged with flery crimson on their lower edges. About half-past eleven, a pencil of bright red light shot up—a signal which the sun uplified to herald his coming. As its lowly moved westward along the hills, increasing in height and brilliancy until it became a long tongue of flame, playing against the streaks of cloud, we were apprehensive that the near disc would rise to view. When the L. n.l. mann's clock pointed to twelve, its base had accome so bright as to shine almost like the sun itself; but after a few breathless moments the unwelcome glow began to fade. We took its bearing ecome so bright as to shine almost like the sun is-elf; but after a few breathless moments the unwel-ome glow began to fade. We took its bearing sen; but after a few breathess mements the unwel-come glow began to fade. We took its bearing with a compass, and after making allowance for the variation (which is here very slight) were convinced that it was really past meridian, and the radiance, which was that of morning a few manutes before belonged to the spiendors of evening now. The order, and the dawn, which had almost ripened to sunrise, now with red away to night without a sunset. We had at last seen a day without a sm.

The schoolmaster, Lars Kaino, a one-armed fellow, with a more than ordinary share of acuteness and intelligence, came to request that I would take his portrait, offering to pay me for my troutle. I agreed to do it gratuitously, on condition that I should keep it myself, and that he should bring his vife to be included in the sketch.

He asserted, with some sacrifice of vanity, and came around yesterday morning, in his holiday suit of blue cloth, trimmed with scarlet and yellow bindng. His wife, a short woman of about twenty-live, with a face as flat and round as a platter, but a remarkably fair complexion, accompanied him, though with evident reluctance, and sat with eyes modestly cast down while I sketched her features. The circumstance of my giving Lars half a dollar at the close of the sitting was immediately spread through Kautokeino, and before night all the Lapps of the place were ambituate to undergo the same operation. The shortness of the imperfect daylight, however, obliged me to decline further offers, especially as there were few Lapps of pure, unmixed blood among

We have visited the native schools and some of the earthern huts, or, rather, dens, in which most of the inhabitants live. There were two schools, each containing about twenty scholars—fat, greasy young-sters, swaddled in reindeer skins, with blue eyes, light brown or yellow hair, and tawny red cheeks, wherever the original color could be discerned. As the rooms were rather warm, the odor of Lapp-child-hood was not quite as fresh as cowslip, and we did not tarry long among them.

Approaching the side of a pile of dirt covered with snow, we pushed, one after another, against a small square door, hung at such a slant that it closed of it-elf, and entered an ante-den used as a store-ro Another similar door ushered us into the house a rude, vaulted space, framed with poles, sticks and reindeer hides, and covered compactly with earth, except a narrow opening in the top to let out the smoke from the fire kindled in the center. Piece: of reindeer hide, dried flesh, bags of fat, and other articles hung from the frame and dangled against our heads as we entered. The den was not more than five feet high by about eight feet in diameter. The owner, a jolly, good-humored Lapp, gave me a low wooden stool, while his wife, with a pipe in her now wooden stool, while his wire, with a pipe in her mouth, squatted down on a hide which served for a bed, and looked at me with amiable curiosity. I contemplated them for a while with my eyes full of tears (the smoke being very thick), until finally both eyes and nose could endure no more, and I sought the open air again.

The Paris correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says a plan did exist, not only for putting an end to the Emperor's life, but for committing murder wholesale, after the fashion of the gunpowder plot The details have been confined, with comparative y wonderful secrecy, to the people about the Tuilleries and prefecture of police. The affair would seem to have been organized for some tolerably long while, and the monwar of action was fixed for the first and the moment of action was fixed for the first night when the court should visit the Theatre Fran-cais. This theatre, situated at the end of the Rue cais. This theatre, situated at the end of the Rue Richelieu, and annexed to the Palais Royal, is, for the greater part, built over a ground floor of shops. Most of these are occupied by tradesmen well known to the authorities; but in the narrow and somewhat dark passage, which runs from one entrance door of the theatre into the Palais Royal, there is a collectiou of small shops, one of which was unoccupied, and had escaped the notice of the police.

This line of shops lies immediately under the imperial box at the Theatre Francais, and this shop was accordingly hired by the individuals who mediated the attack I am going to relate. Little by little, and, as they hoped, unperceived, they had introduced combustibles of all sorts into this closed shop, which was thus representing Guy Faux's cellar. The day before the Emperor's visit, however, to the theatre, to witness the performance of Fiamto the theatre, to witness the performance of Fiammina, the locality being minutely examined, this shop excited attention, and the very day of the state wist it was opened, entered into, and the whole of what it contained was discovered. The plan had been to blow up the imperial box and all that side of the theatre, but it is said that, had the combination even not been discovered, there was not a sufficent quantity of combustibles amassed to have made the execution possible. made the execution possible.

MY LOST FRIEND,-Even while he was courting Ary 1705T FRIEND.—Even while he was courting I kept my hold on him. Against opposition on the part of his bride and her family, he stipulated bravely that I should be his best man on his wedding day. The beautiful woman gradged me one small corner in his heart, even at that time; but he was true to me—he persisted—and I was the first to shake hands with him when he was a married man. I had no suppose that I was to lose him from that moment suspicion that I was to lose him from that moment. I only discovered the truth when I went to pay my lirst visit to the bride and bridegroom at their abode lirst visit to the bride and bridegroom at their abode in the country. I found a beautiful house exquisitely kept from top to bottom; I found a hearty welcome; I found a good dinner and an airy bedroom. I found a pattern husband and a pattern wie; the only thing I did not had was my old friend. Something stood up in clothes, shook hands with me, pressed wine on me, called me by my Christian name, and inquired what I was doing in my profession. It was certainly something that had a trick of looking very much like my former comrade and brother; something that nobody in my situation could have complained of with the smallest reason; something with all the brightness of the old could have complained of with the smallest reason; something with all the brightness of the old metal about it, but without the sterling old ring; something, in short, which made me take my chamber candlestick early on the first night of my arrival, and say good night, while the beautiful woman and pattern wife was present with her eye on that occasion—the volume it spoke in one glance of cruel triumph! "No more sacred secrets between you two," it said brightly. "When you trust him now, you trust me. You may sacrince yourself for your love of him over and over again still, but he shall make no sacrifices now for you, until he has first found out how they affect my convenience and my pleasure. how they affect my convenience and my pleasure. Your place in his heart now is where I choose it to be. I have stormed the citadel, and I will bring be. I have stormed the citader, and I will oling children by and by to keep the ramparts; and you, the faithful old soldier of former years—you have got your discharge, and may sit and sun yourself at got your discharge, and may sit and sun yourself at the outer gates. You have been his truest friend, but he has another now, and need trouble you no longer, except in the capacity of witness of his happiness. This, you will observe, is the order of nature, and the recognized fitness of things; and he hopes you will see it, and so do I. And he trusts you will sleep well under his (and my) new root—and so do I. And he wishes you good night—and so do I!"

BREAD OFT WEST. — If our Western friends can in any way teach their wives, daughters, or cooks to keep the pearlash out of their bread, all the yellow people, especially the yellow children, who are supposed to be turned yellow by the fever and ague, billious fevers, &c., &c., will soon be re-tarned white. It is a mistake to suppose that the yellow countenances of the West come from bile, when it is only the enormous quantities of pearlash eaten in ratus, is King. It is pearlash for breakfast, pearlash for dinner, and pearlash for supper. It is no wonder then that white people East turn yellow west, and sicken, not of fever and agne, billious and congestive fevers, but of pearlash three times per day .- N. Y. Express,

The Rev. George Musgrave, author of "A Pil-grimage into Dauphiue," says all the champagne wine in France is sweetened artificially. The Paris fire-places, he says, are so small that it is impossible to tell what they were made for unless to econo mize wood, which is sold by the pound, like the gold in California. As for warmth, you might as well try to get it out of a two-penny candle. Yet the chimneys are so large, to look at them from the street, you would fancy they led down to fire-places large enough to roast an ox.

The Parisian beds, he says, are delightful. French firmiture is always richer than the table; while the table and purse of the Euglish nlways surpass their firmiture. The mirrors, beds, curtains, gildings, mahogany, &c., of the Parisians, are a constant source of gratilication to their vanity.

The Trenton American says the books, papers, drafts, notes of haud, &c., of the United States Bank, to the amount of forty tons, have been purchased by Messrs. Bottom & Co., of that city, and will be remade into paper. Ten tous of this vast amount is of correspondence, autograph letters of the first statesmen, politicians, and financial men of this and other countries. Drafts upon the Rothschilds for hundreds of thousands of dollars, certificates of Scock transferred to leading bankers in Europe, checks and drafts from Clay, Webster, Adams, Calboun, Houston, Crockett, Cass, &c., &c., all lie scattered, ready for the important transformation into clean, unsullied, white paper. From this large mass of papers some idea may be formed of the business of this institution, which once occupied such a prominent position.

MRS. PARTINGTON AND HARVARD COLLEGE,-"They are determined to drive the "spirits" from Havard," said the Professor to Mrs. Partington, with much glee, and he rubbed his hands delightedly. with much glee, and he rubbed his hands delightedly.

"I want to know!" said the dame, staying her knitting needles in her wonder; "do tell us! Well I never dreamed there was any spirituality in that cemetery of learning beyond what there used to be in the Refreshment and Sycamore classes that Paul used to tell of, and I should think they would be glad to find some there anyhow." The Professor turned the conversation to the impossibility of taking a lunar observation by a tallow candle in a potato arch, and Ike and Lion participated in a struggle for the Professor's cane which was broken in the melee.

We read in Galignani—"The relics of the passion of our Saviour preserved at the Cathedral of Notre Dame—the crown of thorns, the nails, a large piece of the true cross, &c.—are at present exposed to the veneration of believers, and will continue to be so this day, to-morrow, and Friday next."

MR. ANDERSON AND MISS ELSWORTHY .- One of the chief regrets at the early closing of our theatrical season was the failure of the engagement with Mr. Anderson and Miss Elsworthy on account of the illness of Mr. Anderson. A great desire has been expressed among our eitizens to hear these celebrated dramatic artists. The public will be gratified to learn that they will appear for one night only, and will give a "Reading from-King Lear," and also the beantiful little comedy of a "Morning Call," at our theater this evening. As this will be the only opportunity to see these dramatic celebrities, there will of course be a crowded house.

MILITARY COMPANY .- The military company that is being formed in the upper portion of the city will meet for organization next Wednesday evening, at the Lafayette engine house.

A SHIP'S CREW STARVED TO DEATH.—An English ship was wrecked, probably in February last, upon the coast of Norway, relative to which a letter received in England says:

A pilot on the 2d of March boarded a vessel about eight uiles from the land, off Kinn, near Stavanger, dismasted and water-logged. Found in the forecaste the the bodies of six men, which he brought with him on shore, and another body was found oetween the cargo, in the hold, which he could not succeed in landing. A certificate found on board proved the vessel to be the Holingen, from Narva for Gainsborough, with a cargo of deals, &c. The vessel was found to be without provisions; the crew are therefore supposed to have died from starvation, and especially as one of the bodies appeared to bear marks of having been attacked by the others to satisfy their hunger. Some of the bodies had evidently been dead some time, others only a few days. The most remarkable circumstance connected with this wreck is that the crew could have been starved to death on a voyage from Narva to Gainsborough, A pilot on the 2d of March boarded a vessel about this wreck is that the crew could have been starved to death on a vayage from Narva to Gainsborough, as, even admitting that they ran short of provisions or that these were spoiled on the vessel filting with water, the crew must still have existed four or live days, and during that period on a track so frequented as the North Sea, it appears strange that they fell in with no vessel of any kind.

The Paris Citizen says:

The suit of Thomas Johnson, of Montgomery, vs. Harrison Thompson, of Claree, has occupied five days of the present term of our court. The latter sold the former a lot of 94 mules, for $160 per head, some of which the former alleges were unsound. This suit was therefore instituted for damages. Some seventy witnesses were examined by the parties. Some half dozen lawyers were employed on Some seventy witnesses were examined by the parties. Some half dozen lawyers were employed on each side, and the cause most ably argued by Messrs. W. W. Alexander and Roger W. Hansen for the plaintiff, and by Messrs, J. B. Huston and James F. Robinson for the defendant. The cause was submitted to the jury yesterday at 11 o'clock, who in about two hours returned a verdict for the defendant.

THE CHARTER OAK IN EQUITY .- A short time after the fall of the Charter Oak, Mr. James Miguire, assistant foremen of the Charter Oak Engine Company No. 1, applied in behalf of the company for a piece of the tree to make a trumpet, as a me-mento of the O.k. which should be the property of the company for all time coming. Mr. Stuart granted the request, and the piece appropriated was taken to the engine-house of the company. Mr. Magnire, during the last winter, has seen in to relinquish his post in the company, but has not seen lit to relin-quish his hold upon the Charter Oak trumpet.

quish his hold upon the Charter Oak trumpet. To obtain this trumpet a suit was brought against Mr. Maguire yesterday morning at the city court. The company petitioned the court for the restoration of the trumpet to the company for whom it was originally donated by Mr. Stuart. The respondent denurred to the petition, and the counsel argued the question before proceeding to hear the evidence on the merits of the petition. This morning the ccurrendered its decision in favor of the respondent, and the counsel for the company took exceptions, intending to carry the case up.

Reported for the Evening Bulletin.

BALTIMORE, May 1. A strike among the freight conductors on the bal-timore and Ohio R droad parteck of a rottons char-acter yesterday. Several freight trains were stop-ped on the road last evening by a mob of 100 con-ductors, who assembled some distance from the city and rushed on the cars while in motion. They unand rushed on the cars while in motion. They uncup ed the trains, carried off all the couplings, and d ove the engineers and firemen into the woods.
Great excitement is prevailing all along the road, the strike being very general throughout the entire line. Efforts have been made to induce the engineers to join them. The company refuse to compromise with the strikers, and will immediately pay them off and employ new men. The strike is in consequence of the sealing of the cars, which has given offence to the conductors.
